WOMEN'S HEALTH CARE SERVICE

Educational Mission

The Women's Health Care Service at Fletcher Allen Health Care is affiliated with the University of Vermont. In addition to providing quality and compassionate medical care, our providers are dedicated to preparing new physicians and providers to serve women of future generations.

As a part of this educational effort, fellows, resident physicians, medical students, and nursing students may be on-hand during your visit. Fellows have completed training in Obstetrics and Gynecology and are undergoing additional training to specialize in specific areas, such as high-risk pregnancies or reproductive endocrinology. Resident physicians have completed medical school and are specializing in Obstetrics and Gynecology. Medical students and nursing students have completed two years of graduate course work and are undergoing an introduction to clinical medicine.

Please be assured that your physician or provider oversees all office visits and procedures. Feel free to discuss with your physician or provider the involvement of fellows, resident physicians, medical students, and nursing students in your care.

Research Mission

In addition to our commitment to excellence in clinical care, the Women's Health Care Service and its faculty are also actively involved in research. Through academic research efforts, our physicians work with women in our community to advance knowledge in medicine.

You may choose to become involved in a research project being performed by one of our physicians. If you are interested in participating in an optional research program, you can receive information on these studies during your office visit, or you may call our Research Coordinator at (802) 847-0985.

The Institutional Review Board at the University of Vermont approves and oversees all research done at Fletcher Allen Health Care. Women who choose to participate in research make an important contribution to science and the future of medicine.

Our Vision

Our vision is to offer all women comprehensive state-of-the-art health and wellness care, provided by an integrated, multidisciplinary Women's Health Care Service team. We maintain ongoing dialogue and communication among the care sites and community support agencies to insure overall coordination of each woman's care plan.
